DRIVER'S SKILL SAVES TWO LIVES

George Gilmore Throws His Three Horses to Their Knees
as Mother and Child Dashed Before Fire Engine.

The luck and presence of mind of Fireman George Gilmore, driver of Engine No. 58, who is located at No. 51 West One Hundred and Fifteenth street is all that saved Mrs. Ella Sullivan, of No. 284 Eleventh avenue, and her young daughter from instant death to-day.
Engine No. 58 was responding to a fire call from No. 41 West One Hundred and Twenty-fourth street, and turned into One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street at full speed. A long line of traffic cars had come to a stop to give the engine plenty of room to make the turn.
Mrs. Sullivan, who was excited by the noise and confusion, took her child in her arms and darted from behind one of the trolley cars directly in front of the engine.

Speculators held their breath, for it seemed inevitable that the woman would fall beneath the feet of the three horses.
But Gilmore, the driver, with a dexterous, skillful tug of his lines, succeeded in throwing all three of the horses to their knees and a policeman took advantage of the instant to dash in and push the woman and her child out of the way.
One of the horses was injured, and was sent on to the fire, followed by the other two. The crowd for the momentary scene was a small one, and the woman was taken to a small apartment near the fire.

PRINCE AN IMPRESSIONIST.
BERLIN, Dec. 9.—It is learned that the Crown Prince Frederick William's tastes in art matters differ radically from his father's who, it is well known, patronizes academic art styles exclusively. The Crown Prince, on the other hand, is an ardent admirer of impressionism. The Prince lately purchased a large number of impressionist pictures and caricatures at a Potsdam art store and it is said, regrettably declared that that part of them were intended as a present to the Emperor.

(From the London Chronicle.)
In London the term for a left-handed person is knock-handed, the word being also equivalent to awkward; in Lancashire it is k-bawed; in Yorkshire, gal-lock or gawk-handed, an expression dating back to at least the seventeenth century. In Derbyshire are used the terms kag-handed, cork-handed or corkyhanded, while in the Teesdale district cuddy-handed is common, and in Nottingham cooched-handed. In Dorset it is scram-handed and in Devonshire cooched-handed. In the west country, however, in Ireland a left-handed man is called a kithogue. Not many years ago Mr. Tim Healy used this word in a speech at East Wicklow, in which he said that Mr. O'Kelly could fight with his left hand, and had already given his opponent some "kithogues" that would spoil his political beauty during the contest.

Ehrich Bros.' Guarantee.

Some stores sometimes offer single articles at low prices in order to attract trade for other goods; others oftentimes claim to sell cheaper than their competitors.
Now We Guarantee to sell as low or lower than any store in New York, and we hold ourselves ready to instantly refund any difference for the entire purchase price (if desired) in any case where we are shown to have been undersold.
